

Sid Cohen To Hurl For Bees Today In Ornelas Day Game

The Phoenix Senators, assured through two victories of holding their Arizona State League lead, will play the final game with the Bisbee Bees in Riverside Park this afternoon, the day being designated "Ornelas Day" in honor of Yam Ornelas, crack Phoenix center fielder, who will be making his last appearance in a Phoenix uniform. Yam has been sold to Mobile in the Southern Association, and will leave after today's game.

Play will be called sharply at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Manager Roy Johnson last night announced he will send Sid Cohen to the mound today in an effort to get at least one game in the series. Sid Cohen, left hander, is a brother of the famous Andy Cohen of the New York Giants.

Manager Bert Whaling of the Senators has a choice between Tony Freitas and Jimmy Ault, but said last night that unless something unforeseen happens, he probably will send Ault to the hill for his first start in a Phoenix uniform.

Ault is a right hander, and comes to Phoenix from Ogden, Utah, where he had a record so far this season of six games won and three lost. He also is reputedly a hard hitter.

As far as hitting is concerned, Cohen is right there himself. Sid has been seen in action in the last two games, playing both left and right fields. It looked for a time yesterday as though he would also be called into action, but Al Bauer finished the game.

A special event or two, plans for which were not divulged by the Senators' owners, will be staged in connection with "Ornelas Day" today. It is expected a capacity crowd of fans will be on hand to bid Ornelas farewell and give him a rousing send-off to faster company.

The line-ups for the two teams probably will be kept intact.

Let's Get Acquainted