

Sidney Cohen Slated as Regular for Giants

McGraw Still After Star Jewish Player for Giants

Blood Fans Don't Want One Unless He Is Good—Johnny King Was Last Great Player

BY JOHN J. MCGRAW
Manager New York Giants

NEW YORK CITY, July 23.—A Pittsburgh fan, having learned that young Sidney Cohen is with the Giants for a try-out, wants to know if I am still determining my quest for a good Jewish ball player. He is also kind enough to add that he has just learned in that direction would indicate that I am a better sort than was Henry Ford before he discovered his mistake and made his now famous apology.

Yes, I am still in search of a Jewish ball player, and I am almost convinced that I will have one wearing the New York uniform before the end of another season. Reports would indicate that Andy Cohen, sister's older brother, is developing rapidly in the minor league, where I sent him, and I will recall him just as soon as he seems to be used.

"My efforts are not particularly to show that I am a good sport. I think it would be good baseball business in many ways. A good ball player is an asset, no matter what his creed or religion. On top of that, the Jewish fans are one of the biggest supporting elements in our game, and it is but natural that for years they should long to see a Jewish ball player on the field. I am more than anxious to oblige them. We haven't had a really great one since Johnny King."

There is no prejudice against Jewish players in the major league, and I feel sure that the big majority of Jewish fans are convinced of that.

As a matter of fact, the Jews are the ones who have shown themselves good sports in baseball, and I have had an excellent proof of it ever since I announced my intention of securing a good player from among them if I had to scour the country. I have tried out several Jewish players, and the good sportsmanship of my followers is shown in the fact that not once have I been accused of letting them in. The Jewish fans have recruited the names of these men to make good and have not complained. They do not think they were good ball players simply because they were Jews. The fact is the Jewish fans don't want a Jewish player unless he is exceptionally good. Now there is rapid proof for you. It is not a high form of sportsmanship. I have never heard one of them complain of favoritism. I can't imagine anything more nonsensical than favoritism on a ball club. The main idea is to win a pennant, and no sportsman manager would allow favoritism to interfere with that ambition.

GIANTS BUY JACK LEROY, SALLY STAR

Charlotte Hurler Brings Neat Sum—To Report in the Fall

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 23.—(AP)—Jack Leroy, leading pitcher of the Charlotte club of the National League, announced Saturday that he had been bought by the New York Giants for $100,000. The purchase was made by the club of the Charlotte club of the National League.

Mr. Hurler intended to make good the figure with which he was affected, but said that it was high.

Leroy has won seventeen games in his last season, and has been named as one of the best pitchers in the National League. He is a native of the South Atlantic coast, and has been playing in the major league since 1914.

His object was to demonstrate to the fans of the Giants that he was a good pitcher, and that he was a native of the South Atlantic coast, and has been playing in the major league since 1914.

OUR CHECKER COLUMN BY P. H. KETCHUM

INSTRUCTIONS TO BEGINNERS.
The squares on the checkerboard are numbered from 1 to 32 beginning at the upper left hand corner and running left to right as shown on the small diagram. At the beginning of game the black men occupy the squares numbered from 1 to 12 and the white men occupy the squares from 13 to 24. Black always moves first. The problems are set with the black side at the top.

These are both practical end-plays. No. 326 was from a game played by the late James Lee.
