The Lookout

By AL PARKER

Wichita Falls all this week has d great crappie fishing right at door. Lake Wichita has been a ay scene, and the angling frater- ty has made good use of the lusty petite of Mr. Crappie. Quite like- it has been several years since as any fish have been caught as dur- g the last few days. The limit in apple has been the rule rather an the exception.

The followers of Izaak will do all to take advantage of the ances offered the next two weeks, r the season, so far as the irriga- on lakes and their connecting nals are concerned, closes the last y in January. The fish are al- wed to go about their business molested during the months of bruary, March and April. While ere is no effort to conserve other an game fish, the law precludes shing of all kinds and dropping a ited hook into the water during ese months is just as much a vio- tion as catching a bass or crappie.

The anglers who have plied their ort at Lake Kemp can look back on this season as the poorest of least the last three years. For me unaccountable reason the bass ave shown little interest in the ost tempting of lures and natural its. Those who claim to keep up ith things at the big lake are of e opinion that less than 10 per nt of the bass haul of last season as been taken from Lake Kemp is season. The 1926-27 fishing sea- on was just too good for words. he 1927-28 campaign against the ass was a far different story.

None of the experts is willing to azard a guess as to the reason for e bass' change of attitude. All re agreed on one thing. The bass re still there. If they were being ken by some strange malady, the ad fish surely would be seen. If me other fish were disposing of e bass, these marauders certainly ould be in evidence. Lots of bass ave been caught since last May, ut nothing like the year before, nd in the long run, as the eminent re man says, it will work out best r the fishermen. It is a near cer- sinty that bass have multiplied in ake Kemp this past year as never efore. It has been definitely proven hat bass spawn the year around. n closing the season three months, hat period during which spawning s the heaviest has been selected, ut the process of reproduction is arried on to a certain extent dur- ng every one of the 12 months. The oming season should be a whiz for he bass anglers.

The hunting season also is rapid- y nearing its finish. The nimrods till may shoot quail, ducks and eese. Sunday is the final day of he bird season and the end of Janu- ry marks the close of the duck eason. It won't be long now until he outdoorsmen will have to step down.

The Western league is having a ough time deciding on its circuit or the coming campaign. The magnates spent all of the opening day of their meeting at Oklahoma City trying to decide on the loca- tion of the present Lincoln fran- chise. Lincoln has been a weak sis- ter in the circuit since its re-entry a few years back. Pueblo, Colo., looms as a likely substitute, but the league is afraid to move the club because of the possibility of the permanent loss of the Lincoln ter- ritory. It is believed a certainty the Nebraska State league would place a club in Lincoln, if the Western gives up the territory. Then the Western could not fall back on Lincoln, if Pueblo failed to get over.

Most of the Western league's troubles have been caused by the long jumps between cities that pile up expenses and bring many dif- ficulties in drawing up schedules. Franchise changes are annual af- fairs in this class A league and the membership of the league is con- stantly shifting. Many baseball men have long predicted the West- ern would sooner or later blow up because of its geographical ob- stacles, but somehow or another it has managed to keep going.

Sidney Cohen, who will be re- membered as one of the youngsters in the Spudder training camp last spring, has caught on with the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league. He is a southpaw first sacker and a brother of Andy Cohen, former Waco shortstop and now of the New York Giants. Sid did not leave much of an impres- sion in Wichita Falls because of an inability to sock the ball. Never- theless, he manages to catch on with some club just as soon as one releases him, and at least he is get- ting to see much of the U. S. A. in his baseball experience. Being a brother of Andy is his selling point, and but for that connection, it is a certainty he would not find it so easy to catch on with the big minor clubs.
